Messrs. H. S. Patterson, A. G. Studer, L. Kalbfleisch of Didsbury and Alex Robertson of Westcott, have migrated to the foothill country for a few days fishing. No use anybody else thinking of going out there fishing now, these disciples of Isaac Walton will clear out the streams (maybe).

J. M. Campbell, auditor of the Haag shows, was a guest at the Golden West Hotel last week and he gave an unsolicited written testimonial to the manager of the house that he considered the cooking at the hotel the best since they had left Winnipeg.

About 67 ladies came up on a special train from Calgary on Thursday night last to institute a lodge of the Rebekahs in connection with the local lodge of the I. O. O. F. After the institution of the lodge the committee of ladies who had the affair in hand supplied a splendid lunch which was greatly enjoyed by those present.

Harry A. Pearson of Neapolis had the misfortune to cut the cords of his leg just above the heel on Thursday last. He was assisting Mr. Peter Johnston in killing cattle when one of the ropes broke throwing Mr. Pearson down on to a knife. It is to be hoped that he will soon recover.

The Didsbury Citizens band were out in full force on Friday night last and gave a splendid programme of music in the new park under the leadership of Bandmaster Gathercole. During an intermission in the programme Mr. T. Johnston, of Calgary, treated the boys to a fine large juicy watermelon, which it is needless to say was greatly enjoyed by them.

DIDSBURY, ALTA., JULY 11th, 1913
Those who make the Golden West Hotel, Didsbury, Alta., their home, please take notice that on and after the first day of August, the meals will cost thirty-five cents (35c) instead of 25c. The reason why, it is impossible to serve the meal we do at less. As those who patronize this house are aware, we have been serving an excellent meal and prompt service for the money, but from a financial point of view we are at a loss, therefore to continue to serve our many patrons as in the past we must raise the price to 35c per meal.

Thanking those who have patronized this house under its new management and assuring one and all that we will continue to serve, as in the past, the best that money can buy, including service.

Yours Truly,

GOLDEN WEST HOTEL,

Edmonton Posters Out

The poster which has been gotten out by the Edmonton Exhibition this year is quite original and decidedly artistic and attractive. The management have standardized this poster and used it for hanger on the outside cover of the prize list, also in the newspapers. It is the intention to use it on the catalogue which will be issued for the exhibition. It must be seen in the rich coloring of the poster to be fully appreciated. In addition to its appearance the poster also conveys a message to the public on the progress and advancement which have been made in Western Canada. The illustrations of "Glencarnock," the grand champion fat steer exhibited by J. D.
McGregor, of Brandon, Man., at the International Fat Stock Show in Chicago last December. "Rosalind of Old Basing," the champion Dairy cow of the British Empire, owned by
C. A. Julian Sharmen of Red Deer, Alta., while the centre piece, which really "makes" the poster, is a picture of Mr. Sharmen's young son,
"Broughton," seriously engaged with one of "Rosalind's" offspring.

character before a girl will be allowed to go their homes, as it is most essential that the home surroundings should be of the best.
A letter addressed to the Superintendent of Neglected Children, Credit Foncier Building, Edmonton, will bring complete information regarding any of these girls.

Alberta Borrow- ings Restricted

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of municipal affairs in the province of Alberta, said in the course of an authorized interview at the parliament buildings in Edmonton.

"So long as municipalities are restricted in the amount of their borrowings, and so long as they are prevented from using the money for speculative purposes, I cannot see how there is any question as to the security of western municipal bonds. Both these restrictions exist in Alberta, and I do not anticipate that the day will ever come when Alberta municipalities will be found defaulting.

"The towns are restricted in borrowing to 20 per cent of their assessment, while the new rural municipalities are limited to 5 per cent of the assessment.
Investors in Alberta municipal bonds have the additional security in that the assessment is on the single tax basis and is less liable to fluctuation than in places where they tax everything in sight."—Commercial

Camp Meeting Closes

(Contributed)

On Sunday night last the Second Annual Camp meeting of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Holiness Association came to a close.

The services of the last ten days have been a means of great spiritual uplift to those who have attended them.

The Association was extremely fortunate in being able to secure such leaders for the campaign as Dr. R. F.
Walker, President of the Christ Holiness University, Illinois, well known over this continent as being among the most eminent of Bible Expositors.
His clear and logical presentation of Bible truth was a delight to those who took advantage of this great opportunity.

The Rev. L. Milton Williams also is known from coast to coast and from north to south as a man of God, mighty in the scriptures.

Delegates of the association were present from as far east as Winnipeg, Man., as well as from many points in the province of Alberta.

The Association will continue to carry on this Evangelistic campaign at different points in the two provinces throughout the ensuing year.

A Warning

Moose Jaw, July 13.—Since January 1st, thirty-five people have been killed while trespassing on the western lines of the C.P.R. During the past two weeks four babies have been killed between Winnipeg and Calgary. Drastic methods will be adopted by the company to prevent this trespassing in the future, and many prosecutions are expected to follow, for it is strictly against the rules of the company for anyone, not being an employee, to walk on the tracks or in the yards.

MURRAY MURGATROYD

JOURNALIST

By Morice Gerard

The other letter was from Horace Bagguley. To all appearance it had not been tampered with. It was addressed from the Junior Carlton.

My dear M.M.,

When are you coming back? The Pioneer languishes and lies neglected on the tables. It is champagne with the head off—you being the head. Town is filling with the near prospect of Parliament. The new members with the virtue still upon them are mainly to the fore. I hear Government is in rather a tight place as regards the Transalpine question. Right or wrong, I shall vote straight and so will most of us, but I hear there is a goodly group of something more than waverers who can afford to sport a political conscience. Sir Richard Hanley bowed to me in the low yesterday morning; he was riding with his daughter—she will cause a flutter next week at the drawing-room; not only pretty but such an air of breeding! Hanley sat his horse like an old man—he is generally so well set up. He looked careworn and abstracted. If the Government is to sit tight about T.A. he will be the Jonah. I should be sorry to see him dished. He is a strong man and straight. I hear that little sneak, Thompson-Halliday—he was only Halway when I fagged for him at Rugby—is moving heaven and earth to get the moving of the resolution, or other amendment to the address, which is to dish Sir Richard. You now why he hates him so? The old story, Hanley did him a kindness once. Halliday went a mucker before he came into the Thompson guinea, and was precious nearly warned of the turf. Sir Richard, who had known Halliday's father, heard of it and lent him $25,000 to clear, on condition he gave up the ring. I heard the story quite accidentally—for neither of the principals ever said a word about it. So Halliday hates Sir Richard like poison. It is the old tale: Never do a cur a kindness, he is sure to snap at your hand. Halliday bought that up-to-date Journal & Lemon Squeezer, for the sole purpose of blackguarding Hanley; and he must be accused of wasting either money or time. But some of this may be stale news to you? You are more in the swim of journalistic "grip" than I am. By the bye, I have heard your name mentioned at the Junior the last day or two. You know Streathfield West will be vacant shortly, as soon as the Houses meet I am told. Those in the know say that a rising young Pioneer whose initials are in duplicate, is the favorite for the seat—a much-coveted one as you know. People ask me if I know anything about it. What am I to say? Parliament and the Pioneer won't go well together. But you can afford to chuck the latter. The readers of that estimable twilight twinkler will be the poorer, but I shall be the richer if you are in the House. Only why didn't you tell me first? I don't take it kindly, I can tell you. Come back soon.

Ever yours,
Horace B.

Murgatroyd thought long and deeply over this letter. He felt that a crisis in his fate was at hand, yet with the deciding of the issue he had but little to do. Events were crowding thick together at the centre of the political and social circle, while he was at a point on the circumference. What surprised him most, however, was the fact that his own interests and prospects took second place in his thoughts to the two almost unintentional allusions, in the letters to hand that morning, to Maud Hanley.

Half an hour afterwards he returned to his room. Jordan was there tidying up the confusion which his rising had left behind. Murgatroyd wished to have the opportunity of a word or two with him unobserved. He began abruptly—

One of my letters—a very important one—had been tampered with, opened in fact, before I had it. I suspect that German waiter fellow. Do you know anything about him?

I know he's a fool!

I don't mind that so much, but I suspect he's a knave too.

A feeble knave is a fool, remarked Jordan with an air of deep conviction. Keep your eye upon him when the post comes in.

I have—I saw him open that one.

You did? Why the dickens didn't you stop him?

Murgatroyd was aghast at the cool tone of his subordinate.

No, thanks! I wanted to know what he was going to do with it. I like to see the whole hand played out before I pay over the stakes. It will be our turn soon.

You're a cool hand. But perhaps there is something in what you say, Jordan. Well! what did he do with it?

Nipped off pretty sharp to Highdene.

How do you know?

I can travel as fast as he can—faster if need be?

Did he see you?

Jordan gazed at his master with surprise, in which a certain mild resentment was a strong ingredient, as much as to say—This from you?

I don't think I should have been much use here if I'd been as green as that.

Well, Muller knows the whole game by now! I'm not sure whether you would not have been wiser to have stopped the fellow. Great Scott! I shall give him a taste of horsewhip or whalebone before I've done with him.

As for Muller, he knew it before. There was nothing in that letter more than he knew before.

How do you know what was in that letter?

Bless you, I read it first.

Murgatroyd flushed with anger, and took a long stride towards Jordan, who, however did not flinch.

I knew Muller was to have that letter—I wanted to see whether it was worth while to prevent him. I had to read it to make sure. We're pals in this matter. I know the whole jig—so does Muller, and has done so from the first. Don't make no bones about that. But we shall have him yet. He wanted a little more rope, and now he's got it he may look out for squalls. He thinks he's got the best of us. We'll let him wait and see. I've got a king up my sleeve. There, don't you trouble yourself, Mr. Murgatroyd, I will see you out of this business.

But do you mean to say that you and this rascal—Karl or whatever his name is—are going to open all my letters before I do?

Murgatroyd was cooling down, but chafed still, in spite of the fact that he was learning that his ally was a match for them all in this particular diplomacy.

How many letters did you have this morning?

You know perfectly well—two.

How many had been opened?

One, as far as I could see.

That is it. More than one person knew who wrote that letter. Leave it to me, that's all I say.

And Murgatroyd knew he was right.

Occasional clouds fitted across the sky, casting curious shadows of fantastic shape and weird outline over the surface of the sea. He was alone as far as the upper cliff was concerned. Highdene lay away inland to the left. A belt of trees hid it from the view. On the right, two hundred feet below, lay the little harbor of Tormouth. A great many boats lay beached on the shingle, others rode at anchor. The harbor was formed by the mouth of the Tor, which as it neared the sea grew into a sturdy river, from the narrow compass which satisfied its ambition further inland. The streak of the river could be discerned dividing the landscape, winding its way inland for miles. Jemmy was standing on a ledge, with his back resting against a solid seam of red lichen-clad rock, smoking a pipe flavored with his favorite opium.

Suddenly his attention was arrested. The beauty of the still might scene became of very secondary consideration. Jordan detected a tiny light of steam rounding a corner to the south of his present position. It was a course a vessel of very minute tonnage only could have taken. The steamer was obviously making for Tormouth, and clinging to the coast rather than taking a more direct course across the open bay. The captain of the steamer was intentionally trying not to attract notice.

Jemmy had a pair of field-glasses of exceptional quality slung over his shoulder, the property of the landlord of the Falcon. He took them out of their cases, arranged the focus to suit his sight, and then gazed long and steadily at the advancing steam-boat. After thoroughly satisfying himself that this surmise was correct, he chuckled to himself, and then spat down into the sea far below.

It was an action expressive of intense satisfaction. Then he put his pipe into his mouth again, after replacing the glasses in their case, and resumed his lounge against the rock. To all outward appearance he was just the same as before, only now his gaze was concentrated in one direction instead of roving over the whole seascape which lay stretched before his vantage-ground.

No surgical operation is necessary in removing corns if Holloway's Corn Cure be used.

Moses Meyer brought a piece of cloth home to have himself a suit made. The family, examining the goods which were spread out on the table, remarked upon the fine quality, pattern, etc. Even little Isidor was called upon to give his opinion of father's new suit.

He immediately turned the stuff on the wrong side and began to examine it.

Isidor, said old Meyer, laughingly, Isidor, that is the wrong side. How stupid you are.

Why stupid? answered the boy. It will not come to me until it's turned on the wrong side.

BEGAN YOUNG

Had "Nerves" from Youth

"When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Southern girl. "I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very fallow. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned." (Tea contains the same injurious drug, caffeine, found in coffee). "This is the more remarkable as I am a Primary teacher and have kept right on with my work."

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this were the only benefit derived from drinking Postum."

"Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown."

"I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers, who were visiting me, to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. There's a Reason for Postum.

AN EXAMPLE FOR BOXERS

Acrobats and Jugglers by Far the Better Trainers

Training with the average boxer is a joke. In fact they seldom do any real training. Even when they are making a bluff at it they do a little running in the morning, a little shadow boxing in the afternoon. Most of their so-called training, however, consists in loafing in the training quarters and more time is spent in undressing and dressing than in actual work. One man who gets around to the fighters' gymnasium once in a while timed a fighter who was supposed to be training hard for a bout. This fellow did a lot of undressing and dressing, and a lot of talking and joshing with the other scrappers. But he did very little actual work, as a matter of fact, just 11 minutes. That was just one minute more than four rounds in the ring.

Professional acrobats, jugglers, etc. could give the fighters tips on exercising. They spend hours every day of their lives doing their stunts. They never miss a day, even in the winter when they are laying off, they keep limbered up by constant exercising. Men who do hard acrobatic work at afternoon and evening performances don't consider that enough work to keep in shape, but also do some training every morning just to take the stiffness out of their limbs and arms.

Many musicians practice four and five hours every day, keeping it up for years. When this work is compared with the fighter's 11 minutes, the scrappers' system seems like a cinch.

The funniest thing, however, about the training of the modern boxer is the rubdown. Even the cheapest preliminary fighter nowadays has to go through a massage treatment every time he goes to the gymnasium, no matter how little work he does. Most of these fellows get the idea that the rubbing will increase their fighting ability, whereas it does nothing but increase their natural laziness.

BABY'S TEETHING TIME.

Mothers find baby's teething a source of great anxiety—the little one becomes restless and nervous; he becomes cross and cannot sleep, and sometimes constipation, diarrhoea, colic or convulsions seize him. Baby's Own Tablets will prevent all this. They regulate the stomach and bowels; allay the feverishness, and baby will cut his teeth without pain or worry. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Form of Lynching

The old-fashioned disorderly lynchings are no longer in vogue, according to dispatches from Georgia, which is an acknowledged authority on lynchings. We read where a quiet and orderly gathering of gentlemen entered a county jail, took therefrom a prisoner and hung him. The sheriff, who was asleep in the jail, was not disturbed. This is the latest and most approved type of lynching.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have no much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Ornaments Long-Lived

Ornaments last longer than anything else man makes. There are brooches and necklaces in museums more than 40 centuries old. Monuments, perhaps, stand second, and houses third. The life of furniture is shorter still. There is very little furniture in England which dates beyond the year 1500. Pictures last longer than furniture and there are paintings still in fair condition which have weathered six centuries of life.

Facts and News

President Wilson has a dry wit, said a newspaper correspondent. In Trenton, before the inauguration, I was once pestering him for cabinet news. Now, we all know that some irresponsible writers had sent out a good many cabinet fakes. Well, it was apropos of this that President Wilson made a net remark.

Do tell me about the cabinet, I persisted. The public is dying for the facts.

Dying for the facts, it is? said he. Well, nevertheless, I'm afraid I will have to be satisfied with the news.

SEVERAL SHOOTING SCRAPES

And a Number of More or Less Prominent Citizens Are Personally Conducted Across the State Line—The Editor Only Holds Five Offices.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.]

A ROAD agent stopped and robbed a mail carrier on the Lone Jack route the other day and got 11 cents for his pains. This seems to be running an honored profession into the ground.

During the last three sessions of the common council the mayor (who is ourself) has not had to keep a gun on Alderman Murphy to keep him in his place, and his constituents are wondering whether he has gone down in his boots for good or is waiting to catch us with empty shooters.

The editor of the Blue Hill Times charges us with holding eleven different offices and grabbing for others. We had only five offices, and the only other we are reaching out for is the presidency of the United States. Please correct and oblige.

William Johnson, who arrived in this town with two guns and a whoop one day last week, left it last night with three jumps and a sigh. He made several efforts to get up a reputation as a terror, but we gave him thirty minutes to reach the town line, and he didn't want but fifteen.

TWO GUNS AND A WHOOP.

That we will have the esteem and confidence of the people was proved last week when we were elected chief of the fire department, named as orator for next Fourth of July and asked to lead the church choir for the coming year. Integrity of character, backed up by two guns, will always win.

The New York cocktail has been tried here and found to be a flat failure. The idea of a cocktail with our people is to leave a feeling along the throat as if a string of barbed wire fence had been swallowed.

We are given to understand that there will be more high tens and at homes in Givendam Gulch this spring than ever before and that society will be elevated at least two pegs.

A florist from Chicago who was here the other day says that the 2,000,000 acres of desert land in Arizona could be made to grow $20,000,000 worth of roses every year. We'd like to see the cactus, the rattlesnake and the prairie dog hitching along to make room for roses!

The man who woke us up at midnight the other night by heaving a cobblestone through the front window of the Kicker office had a good start as we threw up the ash and fired at him, but we think we winged him by the eye he flung around a corner. We are always ready for little surprise parties and always do our best to make them entertaining.

Did our esteemed contemporary shoot at us on the street last Monday afternoon? He declares that he fired six shots at us, and we declare that we never knew anything about it, and we'll give anybody 15 cents to straighten the kinks of the mystery and settle the question one way or another. We like to know when we are shot at, even by a man who shuts his eyes when he pulls the trigger.

The Lone Jack Recorder says that we hold seven political offices and are wire pulling for eight and asks if such things can be and Arizona remain right side up. The Recorder man is in error. We hold five political offices and are after the sixth, and Arizona was never more solid on her pins.

We may take the lecture platform next month for a few weeks in this locality, but we desire to warn all audiences in advance that we shall have our dignity and our guns along, and the first frozen rabbit that comes whizzing past our head will be the signal for return action on our part. We hate to shoot our lecture on the rise of Shakespeare into the audience, but we have got through jumping out of back windows or hiding in the woods.

When we claim 10,000,000 weekly circulation for the Kicker we lie about it, of course, and that's the difference between a New York and Arizona editor. It's all in the profession, however, and all meant to encourage the reader to lead a life of integrity.

Major Desbro of the 333 ranch says he can identify the dead man hanged to the limb of a tree at the crossing of Wolf creek the other day. It was a person named Tinker, who started to leave Arizona on one of the major's blooded horses, but didn't get a fast enough gait on him to keep ahead of the procession.

We always thought there was something wrong in the head of Joe Hathaway, and his death by suicide the other day proves it. There are at least four towns within a radius of thirty miles which are fairly aching for a lynching bee, and if Joe wanted to die why not give some vigilance committee a show? Let other critters in despondent mood try to improve on his shape.

During our temporary absence from the postoffice Wednesday afternoon an ill favored stranger, who is supposed to be a teamster, entered the corridor and fired six bullets into the clock and got safely away. If he will come some day when we are at home and start in to repeat the performance we will guarantee him the finest coffin to be had in town and a funeral procession half a mile long.

An individual known as Kansas Tom got out of town last Monday night just ten minutes too quick for the vigilance committee, and if he keeps up the gait he had on him when he left his neck will be safe for some time to come.

Old Joe Wheeler, the bear hunter, sends us word from his cave in the mountains that he is coming down some day next week to shoot a few of the townspeople and have a jolly good time for a couple of days. Come on, Joseph. This town is always ready for something new and lively.

There is not much to record in social events this week. The only event of importance was the high tea given by Mrs. Colonel D'Arens, and owing to some mistake in the highness of the tea many of the guests did not get home till afternoon the next day.

In order to maintain our dignity as mayor of this town we had to throw Colonel Chivers down the city hall stairs one day last week, and we understood that he is likely to be laid up for some time to come. Sorry for the colonel, who is a good fellow at bottom, but our dignity must and shall be preserved.

Joe Baker, who lives over on Panther creek, called upon us yesterday to say that he had discovered what appears to be a mine of condensed milk and that he is now looking around for a mine of canned coffee to match it. You can find anything you want in the blue mountains around us.

We understand that Major Callahan, who used to be a resident of this gulch, has come to his end at Santa Fe. He ordered burnt gin at a saloon over there, and the bartender burned too many holes in it, and there was a row. Then he burned a hole through the major.

Mr. George Parsons of Tucson writes us that we are a braggart, an egotist, a liar and a scoundrel and that the people of Arizona ought to rise up and drive us forth. Thanks, George! We like to feel bad now and then.

A party which went into Hill Williams' mountain last week in the interest of science found undeniable evidences of a race of people at least 10,000 years old. We regret that it is too late to shake up a few subscriptions among them.

On the Other Foot.

"John, how much money have we in bank?"

"We? I have a few hundred dollars, Maria. Why?"

"Nothing, only I just got a letter today from the lawyer who settled up my father's estate. There was more property than anybody anticipated—a good deal more."

"That's fine! How much do we get out of it, Maria?"

"We? I got a few thousand dollars, John. Why?"—Chicago Tribune.

READING THE ENVELOPES.

They Tell More Than the Name and Address to the Postman.

Envelopes often tell me more about a man's financial standing than could the best "private inquiry agency." You can't "swank" a postman. And when I deliver on a certain day every month an official envelope with the relief stamp of a furniture firm on the back of it I know pretty well that the envelope contains the receipt for an installment on the furniture. When that envelope fails to turn up I keep an eye open for the other signs of impending bankruptcy.

An envelope with a crease down the middle has obviously been inclosed in another envelope. This tells me the handwriting of the householder and the kind of stationery he uses. When I deliver one of these day after day at the same house I know that the occupant is out of work and is answering advertisements. But when the envelopes stop coming I am left to wonder whether the applicant has been successful—or can afford no more stamps.

Sometimes there is tragedy in envelopes. There was a young fellow who used to stare down at me from behind the window curtain—so anxious to see what I'd got in my hand that he wouldn't wait till I'd pulled the bell. I soon tumbled to his job, for by nearly every post there would be a long envelope creased down the middle, showing it was a return. A writer he was.—Pearson's Weekly.

MAGNETIC CLEOPATRA.

Her Manner, Rather Than Her Beauty, Was Her Chief Charm.

The only authentic portrait of Cleopatra that is known to archaeologists is a bust which appears on a series of coins. It is on the reverse and bears the inscription in Greek, "Queen Cleopatra, the Divine, the Younger," while on the obverse is a portrait of "Antony, Dictator For the Third Time, Triumvir."

The workmanship of the coin is far from good, and this accounts in some measure for the undeniably plain appearance of the queen. Yet the likeness, as far as the features go, is a true one, for the other coins of the same series, though of a different type, give her the same features, an aquiline nose, a strong chin, a long neck and narrow shoulders.

The fact is that her beauty was not so remarkable as one would think from the spell she cast over Caesar and Antony. Plutarch, for instance, tells us "that her beauty in itself was by no means incomparable nor calculated to amaze those who saw her," but adds that the magnetic charm of her manner, the gracefulness of her movements, the persuasiveness of her conversation and her figure were most attractive.

Enjoyed What He Paid For.

It is interesting to note the effect that reputation has on those who are not good critics of the efforts of public performers, as a clerk in a downtown bank was telling.

"I happen to know a celebrated concert artist," he said. "One evening she was in the city and had nothing to do, so she came up to our very humble flat in Harlem to spend a quiet, homelike hour or two. The night was warm, and the windows were open. After dinner she sat down at the piano and sang several songs for us. The next day I heard that one of our neighbors complained loudly about the 'yelling' in our flat and said that such nuisances ought to be prohibited. Two nights later that same neighbor paid $2 a seat for himself, his wife and his daughter to hear our friend sing at a concert."—New York Sun.

Ptolemy's Big Boat.

Ptolemy (Philopator) was fond of building big boats. One of these is said to have been 420 feet long, 57 feet broad and 72 feet deep from the highest point of the stern. This vessel had four rudders or what some would call steering oars, as they were not fastened, each forty-five feet long. She carried 4,000 rowers, besides 3,000 marines, a large body of servants under her decks and stores and provisions. Her oars were fifty-seven feet long, and the handles were weighted with lead. There were 2,000 rowers on a side, and it is supposed that these were divided into five banks. That this extraordinary vessel ever put to sea is doubted, but that she was launched and used at times, if only for display, several historians are agreed.

A Case in Arithmetic.

The teacher was hearing her class of small boys in mathematics.

"Edgar," she said, "if your father can do a piece of work in seven days and your Uncle William can do it in nine days, how long would it take both of them to do it?"

"They would never get it done," answered the boy earnestly. "They would sit down and tell fish stories."—New York Post.

GRACE DARLING'S LOVER.

Sweetheart of Heroine Tells of the Woman He Loved.

Mr. Jimmy Giles, of Ipswich, who for nearly sixty years was dock-gate-man and assistant engineer, is a wonderful link with the past, inasmuch as he was the sweetheart of Grace Darling. Listen to the following conversation with the old seaman, and live over again the memories of that brave exploit near Longstone Lighthouse that made immortal history:—"When a young man I took a cargo of salt from Ipswich to Sunderland. While there I left my brig and was made coxswain of a cable that supplied Longstone Lighthouse with provisions. This was in 1839, and as Grace's great deed took place the previous year I was anxious to meet the famous girl. On my first trip in the cable I saw her standing at the lighthouse door, but, although I tried to draw her attention, she got behind the door. The next time I visited the lighthouse I took a silk handkerchief full of grapes and gave the lot to Grace when I saw her. She thanked me, and we got on well. We walked and sat about on the rocks, and one day we paid a visit to Bamborough to see the castle. As she had to return early to see to the lighthouse I rowed her back.

"Grace was not handsome, but she was passable, with dark eyes and hair, and a face bronzed by the sea air, and conveying a sense of purity and innocence that I have never beheld in any other. She wore very short skirts and a dark blue Scotch cap, which suited her well. She was as good as any sailor, and could set a sail or pull an oar with the best of them.

"Her father, an old man, nigh seventy, was a very old-fashioned man, and always wore drab knee-breeches and buckled shoes, with a sparrow-tail coat, big waistcoat, and a round skull cap trimmed with fur. He didn't think much of my carryings-on with her. Grace often referred to the loss of the Forfarshire, but made little of her own exploit. She showed me her presents, including a gold slipper in a scarlet morocco case, which the Czar of Russia sent her. She was often asked to go to London, but she wouldn't leave 'Daddy.' And, although I became her sweetheart, that was the reason she gave for not marrying, and so we drifted apart."

First Thing Taught.

The Rev. T. E. Bridgen is, with one exception, the smallest man—physically, of course—in the Wesleyan Methodist Church. When a student at Didsbury College he was appointed to preach at one of the big chapels in Lancashire. Arriving early, he took possession of the vestry, rested, and looked over his sermon notes. The society steward at this chapel had been newly appointed, and was big, very big, with his office. Having little education himself, he despised it in others, and thought it tawdry and unnecessary. Just before service-time he came swaggering into the vestry, and, seeing the boy-like form of Mr. Bridgen, addressed him in a hoity-toity manner.

"I suppose," he said, looking disdainfully at the student—"I suppose you're our preacher for the day?"

"Yes, sir," meekly replied Mr. Bridgen.

"And you come from Didsbury College?"

"Yes, sir."

"I have no patience with these colleges," continued the steward. "They only cram a lot of rubbish into the fellows' heads, and, precious little good it is to them." Then, raising his voice, he said: "What on earth do they teach you there?"

"Well," said Mr. Bridgen, meekly, "one of the first things they teach us is to mind our own business."

The steward asked no more questions.

Sand-Bin Beds.

Shortly after eleven at night a policeman in a Yorkshire town was astonished to hear the clock which was in the tower in the market-place strike twelve, and a few minutes later one o'clock. On going to the tower he found the door open, and, clambering up the ladder, found a man apparently fast asleep amongst the works of the clock. Whether the man had dreamt that he was playing football, and had so kicked and deranged the clock as to cause its erratic striking, did not transpire, nor why he should have chosen such a strange sleeping-place.

Every Londoner knows by sight the iron sand-bins which the L.C.C. provide for use in frosty weather. But their cold sides and gritty contents would not seem to make them suitable as sleeping-places. Still, quite recently, a policeman was surprised to find a man curled up in one of them and sleeping as soundly as if he had been on a feather bed.

Perhaps one of the best stories told of Lord Claud Hamilton, chairman of the Great Eastern Railway and M.P. for South Kensington, who has announced his retirement from Parliament at the next election, is that concerning a remark he once made when speaking to the electors whose suffrages he was seeking. "Gentlemen," he said, "I have been spoken of as a bloated aristocrat." Then, passing his hand down his thin chest, "Gentlemen, is that quite fair? Am I bloated?" He was never afterwards called a bloated aristocrat in that constituency.

BALLOONIST AT EIGHT

PERCIVAL SPENCER WAS MASTER OF HIGH ALTITUDES.

Celebrated Aeronaut and Balloon Manufacturer, Who Died Recently in Britain, Inherited His Love For High-Flying From His Grandfather and Father—Used Balloon in War in 1890.

Of almost world-wide reputation as a balloonist, which career he started at the early age of eight, Mr. Percival Spencer, of Spencer Bros., the famous balloon manufacturers, died at his home, Aberdeen Park, Highgate, N. (Eng.) at the age of 42. Mr. Spencer, who was a widower, was the eldest of three brothers, who conduct the business of balloon manufacturers at Highbury, and he was a daring and successful aeronaut. Mr. Spencer must have spent more time in the air than any contemporary aeronaut. He said quite recently that he thought ballooning was the safest way of traveling in the world. And he recommended it for jaded nerves. He also said that a day aloft did one as much good as a week or even a fortnight of any other sort of relaxation. The Spencers are a ballooning family. Mr. Spencer's grandfather made ascents as far back as 1836, and his son carried on the family tradition by making an ascent at the Crystal Palace when only eight years old. On that occasion he was accompanied by his father, and afterwards he made balloon ascents and parachute descents in Egypt, India, the Straits Settlements, China, and Japan. He made special ascents that were witnessed by the Czar of Russia and the Emperor of Japan. Mr. Spencer was a familiar figure not only at the Crystal Palace, but also at fairs and galas throughout the country. On seven occasions he crossed the Channel by balloon, and he has flown across the Irish Sea from the Isle of Man to Scotland. From ballooning Mr. Spencer passed enthusiastically to the airship problem, and he believed that he was the first balloonist to take an active part in military aeronautics. The occasion was the war in Acheen, Sumatra, in 1890. Accompanied by Major Droege, of the Dutch Army, he made a series of investigations that afforded useful information to the Netherlands officers. During part of the operations the balloon, attached to the last truck of an armor-plated train, was drawn through dense tropical forests. When the aerostat was liberated it rose high in the air and showed the position of the enemy's forces, and at a given signal the guns of the forts poured out shot and shell on the native insurgents. The effects were noted from the balloon and orders issued to the forces below. In the pursuit of his profession he had many thrilling experiences. One of his most serious occurred in India. He made an ascent outside Calcutta and came down in the jungle. Quite outside his bearings, and with no knowledge of his whereabouts, Mr. Spencer wandered about the jungle for three days. When eventually he found his way into Calcutta, he was so emaciated and weak that he was thought by the natives to be a ghost, and was so described by them. In Japan he fell with his balloon into the ocean, and was only saved from drowning through the timely appearance of a boat from a battleship.

The Neighborhood Traveler.

It is written, and the world believes it, that travel is the infallible, exclusive cure for provincialism. Perhaps! Ultimately that depends on what the man takes with him in his wanderings. Merely to go accomplishes naught. In due, one need not travel at all. If the man with the common eye will but use his eyes he may bring all the world to him. The Alps and the Rockies are worth seeing, indeed, but the man who is capable of really seeing them, if among them, is capable also of beholding landscape and glory in his own neighborhood.—Booklovers' Magazine.

REDUCING THE COST

Mixed Farming Would Lower the Outlay on the Necessaries of Life

The Canadian Farm in a recent article makes a strong plea for mixed farming in the three Western provinces when it points out that the cost of living can be decreased by its adoption. The article is in part as follows:

"No country in the world should be able to produce better or cheaper meats than those grain-growing provinces. Poultry of all kinds do well, and thrive on the waste of many farm where they are kept while milk and butter and cheese should be yielded in sufficient quantities to at least meet the local demands. Last year Manitoba alone exported upwards of 4,000,000 bushels of feed wheat besides a very large quantity of barley, while she imported more pork and mutton than she raised, and for months last winter Winnipeg imported milk from Minnesota. It is not because of difficulty in raising these products nor of the want of a good market for them that so few enter upon mixed farming. Nor is there a fear that the soil would be injured by taking up the branches of agriculture. Evidence from every hand points to the ease with which abundant yields are secured and meat-producing animals developed. Last year the Canadian Conservation Commission had surveys made of 40,000 acres of Manitoba lands, and learned from the most dependable sources that yields are going back year by year, while weeds are increasing at an alarming rate.

Nor is the remedy hard to find and to employ. It lies in extending the farming operations in the direction of producing the several necessities of life that are being imported in enormous quantities and so largely responsible for the high cost of living in the West.

The happiest farmer and the most contented, and really prosperous family, are those who find profitable employment six days a week the year through and are able to see the returns coming in week by week to meet the emergencies of life. Such men have a most interesting career. They are seldom troubled by gnawing debt, and never run the risk of protracted privation.

POULTRY METHODS

Below we give the record of a pen of nine White Orpingtons belonging to Mr. Frank Smith, a New Brunswick farmer, who conscientiously endeavored to produce the best result possible from his small flock. The records established do not furnish anything specially remarkable, but the account is interesting, if for no other reason than that each pullet was named, and the owner has been able to give the time each commenced to lay and the number of eggs laid up to a stated time. Mr. Smith states that at the time these pullets started laying it was from 20 to 24 degrees below zero. In January he received 97 eggs from the five oldest. Following is the interesting record:—

Monumental Crime

John Bright's voice was unequivocally for peace.

He was walking once past the Crimean monument in London with one of his sons, then a lad. Everyone knows that the word Crimea is engraved on the monument. The boy pointed to the monument, and to the word upon it, and asked:

"Father, what is that?"

That, said John Bright, pointing also to the word, is a crime.

SHE WAS HELPLESS FOR TWO YEARS

WHY MRS. BALDWIN RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She Could Find Nothing to Cure Her Rheumatism Till On a Neighbor's Advice She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Walburg, Sask. (Special).—"I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from rheumatism." These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states. "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbors advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes, and they helped almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backache, her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs swelled and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills, the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism.

Boss—You told me an untruth yesterday when you said you wanted to get away to go to a funeral.

One in a Thousand

Yes, my wife is one in a thousand. Fine cook?

It isn't that.

Economical.

No, it isn't that.

What then?

She always listens patiently while I tell her all about the game.

He was a very down-hearted and disgusted-looking boy; with torn clothes and rumpled hair, and a few suspicious bumps on his face; so I stopped and asked him what the matter was and whether I could be of any assistance to him.

Now, yer can't do nothing fer me; it's a business trouble," he explained. "Ah! Have you lost your position?" I asked.

Now, and I wouldn't care if I had. The president of our company is the worst old duffer in town.

Does he ill-treat you? I said kindly. Now, he doesn't even know me by sight; but he come into the office cross as hornets this mornin' and climbed up the secretary's collar the worst you ever seen.

"But how did that affect you?" Why, don't you see? the boy asked, impatiently. The secretary had to get square somehow, so he jumped on the cashier with both feet; and after the cashier'd thought it all over and got good and mad, he jumped on the book-keeper, and the book-keeper jumped on the entry clerk, and the entry clerk jumped on the bill clerk, and he just sailed in and gimme particular rats. An' there wasn't no one fer me ter jump on so I thought I'd go out and lick a district messenger.

Well, couldn't you find one to lick? I asked.

Oh! I found him quick enough, but I didn't lick 'im.

Why not?

'Cause he licked me!

Wife (complainingly)—You are not like Mr. Knagg. He has been married 20 years, and Mrs. Knagg says he is so tender. Husband—Tender! Well, he should be after being in hot water all these years.

Externally or Internally, It is Good.

When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissues as few liniments do, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will cure affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

An Irishman, in order to celebrate the advent of a new era, went out on a lark. He didn't get home till 3 in the morning, and was barely in the house before nurse rushed up, and, uncovering a bunch of soft goods, showed him triplets. The Irishman looked up at the clock, which said 3, then at the three of a kind in the nurse's arms, and said:

One of the neighbors had recently purchased a little donkey for her little boy, Walter. Of course, all the children in the neighborhood were delighted and were allowed their turn to ride.

The other afternoon Jim, the donkey, acted very badly, and caused Walter to kick and scream to get off his back, when trying to ride.

Howard, aged 4, in telling about it, said: All the children were afraid.

Were you afraid, dear? I asked.

O no, he said, I wasn't afraid. I just said I don't care for any ride today. I would rather have one tomorrow.

The One in Command

Who's that impressive looking woman over yonder?

That's Mrs. Peckum. She's a remarkable strong-minded woman, and they do say that she commands a very large salary.

How does she earn it? She doesn't earn it. Her husband earns it and so she commands it.

In the lobby of a Washington hotel the other evening they were talking about big legal fees when Representative Koenig cited a case.

Some time since, according to the representative, a man fell into an open coal hole, sued for damages and was awarded a substantial amount. When he received a bill from his lawyer, however, he was stumped again, and as soon as he could get into hustling shape he hastened to see him.

Your bill is outrageous! exclaimed the client to the lawyer. It is more than three-fourths of the amount that I recovered.

Quite true, was the calm response of the lawyer, but you mustn't forget that I furnished the skill and legal learning for the case.

Yes, excitedly cried the client, but I furnished the case.

Oh, as far as that goes, was the scornful reply of the lawyer, anybody can fall down a coal hole!

The day was warm, the children restless, the teachers impatient. One curly haired boy was moving his jaws faster with chewing gum than his brain had ever been known to work. His feet were in the aisle. A smile was on the face of more than one pupil when the teacher said:

Take that gum out of your mouth and put your feet in.

AFTER EFFECT OF FEVERS.

Banished Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Following wasting diseases such as fevers, many people find it difficult to regain their former strength. They become breathless and tired out at the least exertion; their appetite is fickle and they often feel as though death was staring them in the face. The trouble lies with the blood which has not returned to its normal condition and is lacking in the red corpuscles without which good health is impossible. It is at a time like this that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills prove their great tonic value. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood which means health and vitality.

Mrs. Theodore Foley, Athens, Ont., says: "Following an attack of typhoid fever I was left in a very weak and disheartened condition. The smallest exertion left me worn and tired out, and I was hardly able to get around, and naturally felt despondent. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they proved of the greatest benefit to me. I am now as well and strong as ever, and can do all my own work, and as we live on a farm, it goes without saying that there is much to do. I feel, therefore, that I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are suffering from the after effects of fevers, la grippe, or any acute disease, you should begin to get new strength to-day through the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The angry citizen puffed into the office of the city editor.

See here, sir, he yelled, what do you mean by publishing my resignation from my political office in this way?

You gave the story out yourself, didn't you? asked the editor.

Of course I did, replied the angry citizen. But your fool paper prints it under the head of Public Improvements.

He thought he was a connoisseur, and he was lamenting the decadence of art.

Look, he said, at the great Italian school of painters. Look even at the old Greeks! Why, Zeuxis painted grapes so naturally that birds came to peck at them.

He did, did he? said a hearer.

That's nothing. I've got a friend who paints a dog so natural that he has to paint a muzzle on him to keep him from biting.

Coal Prices Rise

Nova Scotia and Cape Breton collieries are this year quoting for short tons of coal the same prices which last year applied to long tons. This is equivalent to raising prices precisely 12 per cent.

Four-year-old Donald lived near the carbon works, and liked to watch the men coming from their work as black as if they worked in the coal mine. One evening as he was waiting on the verandah for his black friends a negro passed the house with a baby in a carriage. Donald crawled upon a chair where he would have a better view and then, all excited, called: Mamma, mamma, come quick and see the little carbon works baby.

A Dutchman was going to cross a bridge; he was riding in a little cart drawn by a goat. The toll man came out and said:

Here, you've got to pay toll before you can pass this bridge.

What, to pay toll?

Yes, 5 cents to cross this bridge.

After an argument the Dutchman paid the 5 cents and went on. In the afternoon he came back again, only this time he had the goat sitting on the seat, and he was dragging the cart himself.

Out came the toll man and said: Here, you know you've got to pay 5 cents.

The Dutchman shook his head, and pointing to the goat, said: Don't talk to me—ask the driver.

Reduced by Asthma.—The constant strain of asthma brings the patient to a dreadful state of hopeless exhaustion. Early use should by all means be made of the famous Dr. J. D. No home where asthma is present in the least degree should be without this great remedy.

A Dutchman was relating his marvellous escape from drowning when thirteen of his companions were lost by the upsetting of a boat, and he alone was saved.

And how did you escape this? asked one of his hearers.

Symptoms Warn to Remove the Cause

The ordinary doctor spends his efforts in arresting symptoms rather than removing the cause of trouble. He is often compelled to do this against his better judgment in order to satisfy the demands of his patients.

Symptoms are removed at a dreadful expense to the organs of the body. As an example, consider the effect on the nervous system of drugs so powerful as to immediately stop headaches and other bodily pains.

The reaction is most exhausting on the system, and the result is that the pains and aches return, and the system constantly grows weaker and weaker.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures by removing the cause. Gradually and naturally this food cure revitalizes the feeble, wasted nerves, and by invigorating the system drives out pains, aches and disease.

This is Nature's way of curing disease. It is the only way. The treatment of symptoms is only a makeshift way of avoiding pain. It overlooks the importance of symptoms as a warning of impending trouble.

To get well and keep well use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food until the blood is rich and red, the nerves steady and the body filled with health and vigor.

Court of Revision August 5th

The Council met on Monday night in the Council Chambers, Mayor Atkins, Councillors Moyle, Chambers, Cooper, Osmond, Sec. Treas. St. Clair and Solicitor Patterson being present; Councillor Durrer absent.

The first business brought up was the financial condition of the town, an electric light debenture payment being due and very little cash in the treasury to pay for it, although there is still a lot of back taxes outstanding which if paid would more than cover the current indebtedness.

of those owing back taxes and it was found that there is nearly $3,000 owing. It was felt that this state of affairs should not exist, not only because of the trouble it puts the Council in financing town affairs but also because it is not fair to those who have paid up their taxes.

The Council decided unanimously that as the delinquents had already been warned twice that these arrears should be placed in the hands of the solicitor for collection and to distraint on goods or chattles for same if necessary.

The date for the sittings of the Court of Revision was then discussed and on motion by Councillors Chambers and Moyle it was decided that the Court, which comprises the whole of the Council, should sit on Tuesday, August 5th, commencing at 10 o'clock a.m.

The following bills which were O.K'd were then ordered paid when there was cash to pay them, or applied on back taxes: A. E. Lyons, work, $25.75; A. Roeth, work, $18.20; John Metzgar, $24; A. Jury, work, $22.30; Northern Electric Co $103.13; Western Municipal News, $10; Didsbury Pioneer, $11.35; B. A. St. Clair, $1.90 International Coal & Coke Co., $67.45; Northern Electric Co., $49.28. The Council then adjourned.
